

Urban Folk with Rural Roots

Chris Kokesh is a super mix of talent - a stunning solo artist. Her songs stay with you, finding you humming them long after the show is over. Great voice, fresh originality and a natural musicality that brings it all together to beautifully it'll fill you up and leave you wanting more! ~ Kate Power, former owner of Portland's folk institution Artichoke Music

Chris Kokesh is a fine singer, a strong musician, and her new recording is superb. ~ Tom Krumm, KLCC, Eugene OR

When a song really works, it's hard to imagine those words with any other music, like they always went together and the writer just discovered them. Chris Kokesh is writing songs like that. ~ Jeff Douglas, Oregon Artbeat, OPB

The song that had me grabbing the CD cover to see who wrote it . . . is a Kokesh original.
~ Jeff Rosenberg, Willamette Week (review of Misty Rivers's Stories CD)

With the inception of the band Misty River in 1997, Chris Kokesh became a distinctive voice on the Portland, OR music scene. Her exciting fiddle playing and alluring vocals helped create Misty River's signature vocal blend and modern folk style, and her award-winning songwriting distinguished her as a stand-alone talent.

To date Misty River has recorded eight of Chris's songs on their five albums; these CDs have sold over 50,000 copies and been played all over the world. Chris' solo release I Never Knew (2005) draws upon folk and country traditions, while maintaining an urban character.

Currently working on her second solo record, Chris has become a staple of the Portland music scene as a writer, performer and highly sought after session player. Jeff Douglas, of Oregon Public Broadcasting says, "Whether she's with Misty River or on her own, Chris Kokesh is writing songs that stand up with the best. Keep an ear out for this emerging talent."
